

WEDGWOOD VISION PROJECT

An effort led by the Wedgwood Community Council to engage the entire Wedgwood community to identify shared values and a community vision related to the future growth and development within the boundaries of the Wedgwood neighborhood

What is the Vision Project?

The Wedgwood Vision Project proposes to engage local residents, businesses, schools, service, and religious organizations in civic conversation to identify shared values and community vision related to future growth and development within the geographic boundaries of Wedgwood. It will address wide-ranging topics which we feel define Wedgwood and issues important to us.

Many Seattle neighborhoods are identified as “Urban Villages” where commerce and residential living coincide in high density areas. Such neighborhoods (e.g., Ballard, Wallingford, the U-District) have city-funded community plans already in place. Wedgwood does not have density requirements to qualify as an urban village. Nevertheless, we would like to have a say in what happens to our neighborhood. What better way to do this than to create a future vision of Wedgwood?

The results of this project will help guide future development activity in the years to follow.

You can help shape our future!

The City of Seattle Department of Neighborhoods awarded a grant in August ‘09, which enabled us to hire Makers architecture + urban design to guide us through this endeavor.

A steering committee reflecting wide-ranging interests within our community was formed and has been working diligently in preparation to engage our community.

Several community-wide events are scheduled between now and project completion (end of July 2010). Questionnaires will be distributed to the entire community. Wide-ranging topics will be addressed and discussed, ultimately resulting in the Wedgwood Vision Plan.

WVP Steering Committee is: Darby DuComb, Wayne Wurzer, David Atcheson, Brian Swanson, Kyle Hughes, Diana Dean.
